I. Policy Statement and Purpose

In accordance with applicable law, and the University’s Non-Discrimination/Equal Opportunity Policy and Harassment and Discrimination Policy and Procedure, Athens State University is committed to providing an environment free of sexual harassment or sexual misconduct for all individuals in the University community. Sexual harassment or sexual misconduct by anyone, whether in the classroom, the office, at a University-sponsored function, or during any activity within the scope of the authority of the University’s administration, faculty, or staff, is prohibited and will not be tolerated.

This policy also prohibits retaliation against an individual for making a good faith report of conduct prohibited under this policy. Any attempt to intimidate, penalize or retaliate against a person bringing, investigating, or cooperating with an investigation of sexual misconduct is prohibited and will be treated as a separate incident of harassment to be reviewed on its own merit.

This policy applies to all employees, students, applicants, vendors/contractors, visitors, and all others conducting official business with the University or participating in any activity within the scope of the authority of the University’s administration, faculty, or staff. This policy defines the process by which an individual who has made a complaint in good faith concerning sexual misconduct (the “complainant”) may pursue resolution of the matter.

This policy applies to the education program and activities of Athens State University, to conduct that takes place on the campus or on property owned or controlled by Athens State University, at Athens State University-sponsored events, or in buildings owned or controlled by Athens State University. The Respondent must be a member of Athens State University’s community in order for its policies to apply.

Sanctions for any member of the University community engaging in acts of Sexual Harassment and Misconduct, or engaging in acts of retaliation, may include suspension or dismissal from the University, termination from employment, and/or referral for criminal investigation and prosecution under Alabama law.

This policy is designed to comply with applicable legal requirements including Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972; relevant provisions for the Violence Against Women

As a recipient of federal financial assistance for education activities, Athens State University is required by Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 to ensure that all its education programs and activities do not discriminate on the basis of sex. Sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating and domestic violence, and stalking are forms of sex discrimination, which are prohibited under Title IX and by Athens State University policy.

V. Prohibited Conduct Defined

Students, staff, administrators, and faculty are entitled to an employment and educational environment that is free of sexual misconduct. Athens State University’s sexual misconduct policy is not meant to inhibit or prohibit educational content or discussions inside or outside of the classroom that include germane but controversial or sensitive subject matters protected by academic freedom.

The sections below describe the specific forms of legally prohibited sexual misconduct that are also prohibited under Athens State University policy. Sexual Misconduct, including but not limited to sexual harassment, sexual assault (non-consensual sexual contact or non-consensual sexual intercourse), domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking are forms of sex discrimination that violate Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, the Violence Against Women Authorization Act (VAWA), the Campus Sexual Violence Elimination (Campus SaVE) Act, as well as the University’s Non-Discrimination/Equal Opportunity Policy and Harassment and Discrimination Policy and Procedure.
Sexual Harassment

The Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights (OCR), the Equal Opportunity Commission (EEOC), and the Code of Alabama regard sexual harassment as an unlawful discriminatory practice.

Athens State University has adopted the following definition of Sexual Harassment in order to address the unique environment of an academic community, which consists not only of employer and employees, but of students as well.

In cases of alleged sexual harassment, the protection of first amendment rights must be considered if issues of speech or artistic expression are involved. Free speech rights apply in the classroom and in all other education programs and activities, as well as to the speech of students and employees. Care must be taken not to inhibit open discussion, academic debate, and expression of personal opinion, particularly in the classroom. Nonetheless, speech or conduct of a sexual or hostile nature that occurs in the context of educational instruction may exceed the protections of academic freedom and constitute prohibited sexual harassment if it meets the definition of sexual harassment and (1) is reasonably regarded as non-professorial speech (e.g., advances a personal interest of the faculty member as opposed to furthering the learning process or legitimate objectives of the course), or (2) lacks accepted pedagogical purpose or is not germane to the academic subject matter.

Acts of sexual harassment may be committed by any person upon any other person, regardless of the sex, sexual orientation, and/or gender identity of those involved.

Sexual Harassment, as an umbrella category includes the offenses of sexual harassment, sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking, is defined as:
Conduct on the basis of sex that satisfies one or more of the following:

1) Quid Pro Quo:
   a. an employee of the University,

3) Sexual assault, defined as:
   a) Sex Offenses, Forcible:

      2) With a person who is under the statutory age of consent of Alabama.
4) Dating Violence, defined as:
   a) violence,
   b) on the basis of sex,
   c) committed by a person,
   d) who is in or has been in a social relationship of a romantic or intimate nature with the Complainant.
      i. The existence of such a relationship shall be determined based on the Complainant’s statement and with consideration of the length of the relationship, the type of relationship, and the frequency of interaction between the persons involved in the relationship. For the purposes of this definition—
      ii. Dating violence includes, but is not limited to, sexual or physical abuse or the threat of such abuse.
      iii. Dating violence does not include acts covered under the definition of Domestic violence.

5) Domestic Violence, defined as:
   a) violence,
   b) On the basis of sex
   c) Committed by a current or former spouse or intimate partner of the Complainant,
   d) By a person with whom the Complainant shares a child in common, or

   g) By any other person against an adult or your Complainant who is protected from that person’s acts under the domestic or family violence laws of Alabama

According to the Code of Alabama §13A-6-130 et. seq., domestic violence includes misdemeanor or felony crimes of violence committed by a person against any victim who is:
- a current or former spouse of the accused;
- a parent, step-parent, child or step-child of the accused;
- any person with whom the accused has a child in common;
• a present or former household member with the accused; or
• a person who has or had a dating or engagement relationship with the accused.

As further specified in the Campus SaVE Act, dating violence is a crime of violence committed by a person against any victim who has been in a romantic or intimate relationship with the accused, where the existence of the relationship is determined by the length, type, and frequency of interaction in the relationship.

6) Stalking, defined as:

a) Engaging in a course of conduct,
b) On the basis of sex,

c) directed at a specific person, that i. would cause a reasonable person to fear for the person’s safety, or
   ii. the safety of others; or
   iii. Suffer substantial emotional distress.

For the purposes of this definition—

(i) Course of conduct means two or more acts, including, but not limited to, acts in which the Respondent directly, indirectly, or through third parties, by any action, method, device, or means, follows, monitors, observes, surveils, threatens, or communicates to or about a person, or interferes with a person’s property.

(ii) Reasonable person means a reasonable person under similar circumstances and with similar identities to the Complainant.

(iii) Substantial emotional distress means significant mental suffering or anguish that may but does not necessarily require medical or other professional treatment or counseling.
Force, Coercion, Consent, and Incapacitation

As used in the offenses above, the following definitions and understandings apply:

1. Force: Force is the use of physical violence and/or physical imposition to gain sexual access. Force also includes threats, intimidation (implied threats), and coercion that is intended to overcome resistance or produce consent.

   Sexual activity that is forced is, by definition, non-consensual, but non-consensual sexual activity is not necessarily forced. Silence or the absence of resistance alone is not consent.

2. Consent: Consent refers to the voluntary agreement of an individual to engage in sexual contact or activity with another person. In order for individuals to engage in sexual activity of any type with each other, there must be clear, knowing, and voluntary consent prior to and during sexual activity. Consent is sexual permission. Consent can be given by word or clear action, but non-verbal consent is not as clear as talking about what is wanted and what is not wanted – setting boundaries. Consent to some form of sexual activity cannot be automatically taken as consent to any other form of sexual activity. Silence – without clear actions demonstrating permission – cannot be assumed to show consent.

   In addition, there is a difference between seduction and coercion. Coercion happens when someone is pressured unreasonably to participate in sexual activity. Coercing someone into sexual activity violates consent in the same way as physically forcing someone into sex.

3. Incapacitation: Incapacitation occurs when someone cannot make rational, reasonable decisions because they lack the capacity to give knowing/informed consent. As such, it must be recognized that:

   - Someone who is incapacitated cannot consent. Incapacitation may be due to alcohol or drug use, an intellectual or other disability that prevents the person from having the capacity to give consent, or the person being asleep or unconscious. In addition, according to the Code of Alabama §13A-6-70, a person less than 16 years old is incapable of consent.
   - Past consent does not imply future consent.
   - Silence or absence of resistance does not imply consent.
   - Consent to engage in sexual contact or activity with one person does not imply consent to engage in sexual contact or activity with another person.

- Consent can be withdrawn at any time.
- Coercion, force, or threat of either invalidates consent.

VI. Confidentiality and Privacy

In considering a course of action related to sexual misconduct and in order to make informed choices about who to consult, individuals need to be aware of the reporting requirements for University employees and how these relate to any request for confidentiality and/or privacy.

a) Confidential Reporting

If an individual would like the details of an incident to be kept confidential, the individual may speak with the University’s licensed professional counselor, who is available by appointment to discuss personal issues. However, if the counselor believes circumstances represent the potential for greater harm for the individual or the University community at large, or if the counselor believes there is an immediate threat or abuse of a minor, the limits of confidentiality and personal safety planning will be discussed in greater detail with the client.

b) Responsible Employees

Responsible employees are University employees who have the duty of reporting incidents of sexual misconduct to the Title IX Coordinator or the Title IX Deputy Coordinator, or who have been given the authority by the University to take action when incidents of sexual misconduct are reported.

As such, all University employees have a duty to report, unless they fall under the “Confidential Reporting” section above. Individuals bringing a complaint may want to consider carefully whether they share personally identifiable details with non-confidential employees, as those details must be shared by the employee with the Title IX Coordinator or the Title IX Deputy Coordinator. Otherwise, employees must share all details of the reports they receive. If a complainant does not wish for their name to be shared, does not wish for an investigation to take place, or does not want a formal resolution to be pursued, the complainant may make such a request to the Title IX Coordinator or the Title IX Deputy Coordinator, who will evaluate that request in light of the duty to ensure the safety of the campus and comply with federal law.
In cases indicating pattern, predation, threat, weapons and/or violence, the University will likely be unable to honor a request for confidentiality. In cases where the victim requests confidentiality and the circumstances allow the University to honor that request, the University will offer interim supports and remedies to the victim and the community, but will not otherwise pursue formal action. A party bringing a complaint has the right, and can expect, to have complaints taken seriously by the University when formally reported, and to have those incidents investigated and properly resolved.

c) Reporting complaints to Responsible Employees Individuals should be aware that once a responsible employee knows, or reasonably should know of an incident of sexual misconduct, that employee must report the incident to the Title IX Coordinator or the Title IX Deputy Coordinator promptly. The University must take appropriate steps to address the situation, particularly in circumstances that represent the potential for greater harm for an individual or the University community at large, even if the alleged victim chooses not to pursue a formal investigation and review.

d) Privacy
Formal reporting still affords privacy to the complainant, in that only a small group of officials who need to know will be told. Information will be shared as necessary with investigators, witnesses, and the alleged offender. The circle of people with this knowledge will be kept as tight as possible to preserve the rights and privacy of both the complainant and alleged offender.

An Athens State University official may contact parents/guardians to inform them of situations in which there is a significant and articulable health and/or safety risk, but will usually consult with the student first before doing so.

VII. Options for Making a Report

Any individual who has experienced acts of Sexual Harassment or Misconduct may request a criminal investigation, an internal University investigation, both, or neither, and has the right to participate in any such investigation and in any resulting disciplinary process as detailed therein.
Individuals may file a complaint with, or give verbal notice to, the Title IX Coordinator, Title IX Deputy Coordinator, or a responsible employee. Such a report may be made at any time (including during non-business hours) by using the telephone number or email address, or by mail to the office address, listed for the Title IX Coordinator.

If such a disclosure is made to a Responsible Employee, necessitating a report to the Title IX Coordinator, the complainant will be provided information about the University’s complaint and resolutions processes and invited to make a report.

Once the complaint is reported to the Title IX Coordinator, in some cases it is the complainant’s choice as to whether the University proceeds with a formal investigation and review of the complaint. However, in cases of possible sexual assault/violence, once a University official receives notice of the incident, the University has the obligation to take appropriate steps to address the situation regardless of whether the complainant chooses to proceed with a formal investigation and review. The University will take immediate and appropriate steps to investigate or otherwise determine what occurred (maintaining confidentiality to the extent practicable and appropriate), if the situation creates an unsafe or hostile environment, and what steps can be taken to address the situation so as to provide a safe environment for all members of the University community.

In cases of sexual assault/violence, the complainant may also choose and is encouraged to file a criminal report, in addition to lodging a formal complaint of sexual misconduct with the University. Filing a criminal report puts the incident on record and helps to give the complainant options regarding criminal prosecution at a later date if the individual so chooses. The Title IX Coordinator and the Campus Security personnel can assist individuals who wish to pursue filing criminal reports.

Except in cases of emergency or an imminent or continuing threat of harm, the University must respect the decision of an individual not to report an incident to law enforcement, unless otherwise required by law.
VIII. Time Limits on Reporting

There is no time limitation on providing notice/complaints to the Title IX Coordinator. However, if the Respondent is no longer subject to Athens State University's jurisdiction and/or significant time has passed, the ability to investigate, respond, and provide remedies may be more limited or impossible.

Acting on notice/complaints significantly impacted by the passage of time (including, but not limited to, the rescission or revision of policy) is at the discretion of the Title IX Coordinator, who may document allegations for future reference, offer supportive measures and/or remedies, and/or engage in informal or formal action, as appropriate.

When notice/complaint is affected by significant time delay, the Athens State University will typically apply the policy in place at the time of the alleged misconduct and the procedures in place at the time of notice/complaint.

IX. Supportive Measures

Athens State University will offer and implement appropriate and reasonable supportive measures to the parties upon notice of alleged sexual misconduct, and/or retaliation. Supportive measures are non-disciplinary, non-punitive individualized services offered as appropriate, as reasonably available, and without fee or charge to the parties to restore or preserve access to Athens State University’s education program or activity, including measures designed to protect the safety of all parties or Athens State University’s educational environment, and/or deter harassment, discrimination, and/or retaliation.

These actions may include, but are not limited to:

- Referral to counseling, medical, and/or other healthcare services
- Referral to community-based service providers
- Student financial aid counseling
- Altering work arrangements for employees or student-employees
- Safety planning
- Providing campus safety escorts
• Implementing contact limitations (no contact orders) between the parties
• Academic support, extensions of deadlines, or other course/program-related adjustments.
• Timely warnings
• Class schedule modifications, withdrawals, or leaves of absence
• Increased security and monitoring of certain areas of the campus
• Any other actions deemed appropriate by the Title IX Coordinator

X. Emergency Removal

Athens State University can act to remove a Respondent entirely or partially from its education program or activities on an emergency basis when it has been determined by the appropriate administrators and security personnel that an immediate threat to the physical health or safety of any student or other individual justifies removal.

XI. University Response

Athens State University will provide a timely response to an allegation of sexual harassment when such an allegation is provided to an institution’s Title IX Coordinator or to any official of the institution who has authority to institute corrective measures on behalf of the institution. Complaints can take 60-90 business days to resolve, typically. There are always exceptions and extenuating circumstances that can cause a resolution to take longer, but the University will avoid all undue delays within its control.

Athens State University will presume that the respondent is not responsible for the alleged conduct until a determination regarding responsibility is made at the conclusion of the grievance process by the preponderance of the evidence. The burden of proof to prove the allegations of prohibited conduct rests on the University.
XII. Statement of Rights of the Parties

- The right to an equitable investigation and resolution of all credible allegations of prohibited sexual misconduct made in good faith to University officials.
- The right to timely written notice of all alleged violations, including the identity of the parties involved (if known), the precise misconduct being alleged, the date and location of the alleged misconduct (if known), the implicated policies and procedures, and possible sanctions.

and federal law, prior to the hearing, and the right to have at least ten (10) business days to review the report prior to the hearing.

- The right to respond to the investigation report, including comments providing any additional relevant evidence after the opportunity to review the investigation report, and to have that response on the record.

- The right to be promptly informed in a written Notice of Outcome letter of the finding(s) and sanction(s) of the resolution process and a detailed rationale therefor (including an explanation of how credibility was assessed), delivered simultaneously (without undue delay) to the parties.
- The right to be informed in writing of when a decision by the University is considered final and any changes to the sanction(s) that occur before the decision is finalized.
- The right to be informed of the opportunity to appeal the finding(s) and sanction(s) of the resolution process, and the procedures for doing so in accordance with the standards for appeal established by the University.
XIII. Grievance Procedures

Athens State University will act on any formal notice/complaint of violation of the Sexual Misconduct Policy by applying one of the following procedures, known as Process A and Process B.

a) Process A – The Department of Education’s Title IX regulations require institutions to respond to sexual harassment when it occurs in their education programs or activities in the United States, including locations, events, or circumstances over which an institution exercises substantial control over both the alleged perpetrator and the context in which the harassment occurred. The regulations specify a grievance process that must be carried out when the institution receives a formal complaint.

1. This process includes a requirement that institutions provide both parties an equal opportunity to inspect and review evidence obtained as part of the investigation that is directly related to the allegations raised in a formal complaint. While institutions must maintain compliance with the Family Education Rights Privacy Act (FERPA), the regulatory preamble specifically states that if “the enforcement of FERPA would interfere with the primary purpose of Title IX to eliminate sex-based discrimination in schools, the requirements of Title IX override any conflicting FERPA provisions.”

2. The regulations prohibit the grievance process from requiring the submission of any evidence that is protected under legally recognized privilege (such as medical records covered by the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA)).

3. The process includes a live hearing with cross-examination, which must be conducted by the parties’ advisors, not the parties themselves.

4. At the conclusion of the grievance process, a decision-maker must issue a written determination regarding responsibility.

5. The regulations allow institutions to use informal resolution procedures with the voluntary, informed, and written consent of both parties.

- The right to a fundamentally fair resolution as defined in these procedures.
i. Informal resolution may only be offered after a formal complaint is filed.
ii. Parties have the right to withdraw from informal resolution and resume the grievance process at any time.
iii. Informal resolution may not be used to resolve allegations that an employee sexually harassed a student.

6. Institutions must offer both parties the opportunity to appeal a final determination or the dismissal of a formal complaint or any allegations therein. Permissible bases for an appeal are:
   i. Procedural irregularities
   ii. New evidence
   iii. Conflicts of interest

Grievance Process A applies only to allegations of sexual harassment (including sexual assault, dating violence, domestic violence, and stalking, as defined above) involving students and employees, which qualify under the Title IX rule.

b) Process B – Process B can apply to sexual harassment (including sexual assault, dating violence, domestic violence, and stalking, as defined above) when jurisdiction does not fall within Process A, as determined by the Title IX Coordinator.
