Mathematics, Computer Science, and Biology majors provide tutoring and general assistance for 300-level courses and a limited number of 400-level courses in mathematics, computer science, information technology, biology, and chemistry taken at Athens State University. Let Ben, Caitlyn, Levi, Nick, and Rayleigh help you by providing courteous and knowledgeable service at the Math C/S N/S (MCNS) Learning Lab this fall semester. Some of the majors are especially able to assist you with your CS 305/317/318 programming needs. (C++ programming help is available on a limited basis. There are some upper level courses for which assistance can be sought, but contact the MCNS Lab or visit the MCNS Lab Website for specific time slots for programming help.) Although MCNS Learning Lab employees CANNOT assist with completion of graded assessments, quizzes or tests, they CAN provide tutoring in specific topics.

Current ASU MCNS Learning Lab key notes:

- ∞ Until otherwise advertised, tutorial services will be available online through electronic interface. We hope to return to traditional face-to-face on-campus services at the MCNS Learning Lab facilities in Waters Room S-202 and Waters Room S-300 as soon as safely possible.
- ∞ Evening hours are generally available Monday through Thursday, but exceptions occur depending upon staff availability.
- ∞ VERY IMPORTANT NOTE: Information about how to obtain tutoring may be found at <https://www.athens.edu/arts-sciences/math-lab/> or <https://www.athens.edu/writingcenter/> or <https://athens.mywconline.com/>. While the Writing Center main webpage does not specifically mention MCNS tutoring, tutoring or assistance with your math, computer science, and natural sciences needs is available upon registration through the Writing Center tutorial portal ("Register now"). A notice will be sent to the greater Athens State Community when onsite tutoring becomes available.
